

Bob Beck is a biologist, naturalist and business owner who grew up on his dad's dairy farm in the Town of Dryden. After his studies at Cornell in animal behavior, ecology and evolutionary biology, he received a fellowship at the Bronx Zoo and taught at Sarah Lawrence College in Westchester County. Returning to Dryden, Bob was a founding board member of the Finger Lakes Land Trust and its first Executive Director. As a member of the Tompkins County Environmental Management Council he helped produce two editions of the county "Inventory of Unique Natural Areas." Bob has been a trustee for The Nature Conservancy and he organized and led the decade-long successful effort to establish the von Engeln Preserve at Malloryville. And for something completely different, Bob is the founder, owner and operator of The Closet Pro LLC where he designs and installs custom closet shelving systems. Bob lives with his wife and two growing boys at Malloryville.
